San Bruno History

Early History

Prior to 1750, the San Francisco Peninsula was inhabited by the Ohlone Indians. They were hunter-gatherers who relied largely on the bay and ocean for food. Three hunting campsites have been identified in San Bruno. One of them was found along San Bruno Creek, while the other two were near the creek that flows through Crestmoor Canyon.

European Settlement

Captain Bruno Heceta explored the western shore of the San Francisco Bay in 1775. He named the largest land mass on that side of the peninsula Mount San Bruno, after his patron saint, Saint Bruno the Confessor. The City of San Bruno was named after the mountain.

In 1776, a mission was established in San Francisco. The government of the newly explored territory was centered at the mission on the Monterey Peninsula, 100 miles to the south, so a road connecting the two missions was needed. This road became El Camino Real (The Royal Highway).

In the 1820s, the San Bruno land was awarded to Jose Antonio Sanchez by the Mexican Government. His property spanned from San Bruno Mountain in the north to Burlingame in the south and from the bay in the east to the mountain ridge in the west. When Sanchez died in 1843, his land was to be divided among his nine heirs. After the United States won the Mexican-American war in 1848, Sanchez's heirs lost the land through the court system. Much of the Sanchez land was purchased by Darius Mills.

San Bruno During Early Statehood

In the early 1850s, James Thorpe built a lean-to on what is now El Camino Real and San Mateo Avenue for changing and watering horses on the "county road" between San Jose and San Francisco. Eventually, in 1875, after several changes of ownership and name, Thorpe's Place, or the 14 Mile House, was transformed by August Jenevein into Uncle Tom's Cabin, an eating, drinking, and gaming establishment. Uncle Tom's Cabin was one of the most prominent landmarks in the City until it was torn down in 1949.

The railroad between San Francisco and San Jose was constructed through the San Bruno area in 1863. A year earlier, the San Bruno House was built in anticipation of the railroad. The San Bruno House was a hotel and waystation. It was a key to San Bruno's development as a rural getaway for the people of San Francisco. It was never rebuilt after 1901, when it burned down for the third time.

The land on which The Shops at Tanforan now stands had been used for horse raising and grazing since the early days of the Spanish occupation on the Peninsula. Tanforan Racetrack opened in 1899. It was named for Toribio Tanforan, the grandson-in-law of Jose Antonio Sanchez. Toribio was a vaquero (cowboy) from Chile. Tanforan Racetrack was the takeoff site of the first flight ever on the West Coast, as well as the site of the first-ever aircraft carrier takeoff and landing in 1911. The ship was the U.S.S. Pennsylvania. Tanforan held races of all types, from horse races to races between cars and airplanes, until it burned down in 1964.

San Bruno Becomes a City

Much of San Bruno had been developed from wilderness to ranch land by the 1880s. The ranches supplied San Francisco with horses, milk, and meat. After the San Francisco earthquake and fire in 1906, the San Bruno Park Addition was developed into housing. Several other new neighborhoods sprung up until 1914 when San Bruno became an official municipality. At that time, San Bruno had roughly 1,400 residents.

San Bruno Today

San Bruno was known as a rural town until the 1940s when two events changed the City dramatically. First, Tanforan Racetrack was used during World War II for the internment of American citizens of Japanese descent before sending them off to detention camps. The Army oversaw this operation and decided to use the area west of the racetrack for the Army's Western Region Advance Personnel Depot. Thousands of military personnel went through San Bruno on their way to and from military outposts in the Pacific. Many of the military personnel decided to settle in the area upon their return to the United States.

The second event of the '40s that changed San Bruno was George Williams' purchase of much of the Mills land. Williams built houses on this land for the vast number of support personnel and veterans returning from the war. Soon after the Mills Park Addition was developed by Williams, the land in the western hills of San Bruno was also developed into housing. The housing boom that took place between the 1940s and 1960s transformed San Bruno from a town of about 6,500 in 1940 to a population of over 35,000 by the mid-1960s. Since then, the population has stabilized due to a lack of available land. Currently, there are about 41,000 residents in San Bruno.

Periodically however, burial space may become available due to a canceled reservation or when a disinterment has taken place. When either of these scenarios occurs, the gravesite is made available to another eligible veteran on a first-come, first-served basis. Since there is no way to know in advance when a gravesite may become available, please contact the cemetery at the time of need to inquire whether space is available.

Historical Information: Golden Gate National Cemetery is located in the city of San Bruno, adjacent to Sneath Lane and El Camino Real. Because of the name and location, it is frequently confused with San Francisco National Cemetery, which dates to the 19th century and is in that city's Presidio, in view of the Golden Gate Bridge. About 1937, San Francisco residents voted to no longer build cemeteries within the city proper and, as a result, the site for the new national cemetery was selected south of the city limits. Congress authorized construction of Golden Gate National Cemetery in 1937, with the first interments taking place in 1941. The cemetery was officially dedicated on Memorial Day, May 30, 1942. Then Attorney General Earl Warren (and later U.S. Supreme Court Justice) was keynote speaker at the ceremony.

The cemetery is comprised of 161.6 acres. Approximately 112,600 gravesites are maintained with more than 139,800 veterans and dependents interred in the cemetery. Veterans buried in this national shrine include those who fought in the Civil War and every war since.

Golden Gate National Cemetery is closed to new interments. Casket space was depleted in 1967 and cremation space was depleted in 1998.

Mission: The National Cemetery Administration honors Veterans with final resting places in national shrines and with lasting tributes that commemorate their service to our Nation.

Notable burials:

One of America's most valiant naval officers—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz— is buried at Golden Gate National Cemetery. A number of distinguished officers who served under him are also buried here. Admirals Raymond A. Spruance, Richmond K. Turner and Charles A. Lockwood are buried in Section C, Gravesites 1, 3, 7 and 5, respectively.

Leo Ryan, member of U.S. Congress, killed in Guyana in the line of duty while serving as a member of that body. (Section C, Gravesite 15-A)

24 sailors who perished while loading Liberty ships in the Port Chicago incident on July 17, 1944, and whose remains were subsequently unidentifiable, are buried as Unknowns in Section P.

15 Medal of Honor recipients are interred in Golden Gate National Cemetery.

28 group markers throughout the cemetery, honoring those who died a common death.

The 44 German and Italian prisoners-of-war interred here were captured in North Africa after the collapse of the German Afrika Corps under the command of Lt. Gen. Erwin Rommel in 1943. The POWs were housed at Camp Beale and Camp Cook in California and Camp Rupert in Idaho, where they were originally buried at the respective post cemeteries. When the posts closed, the POWs were reinterred at Golden Gate.

FLORAL & GROUNDS REGULATIONS:

Cemetery policies are conspicuously posted and readily visible to the public. Floral arrangements accompanying the casket or urn at the time of burial will be placed on the completed grave. Natural cut flowers may be placed on graves at any time of the year. They will be removed when they become unsightly or when it becomes necessary to facilitate cemetery operations such as mowing.

Artificial flowers and potted plants will be permitted on graves during periods when their presence will not interfere with grounds maintenance. As a general rule, artificial flowers and potted plants will be allowed on graves for a period extending 10 days before through 10 days after Easter Sunday and Memorial Day.

Christmas wreaths, grave blankets and other seasonal adornments may be placed on graves from Dec. 1 through Jan. 20. They may not be secured to headstones or markers.

Permanent planting, statues, vigil lights, breakable objects and similar items are not permitted on the graves. The Department of Veterans Affairs does not permit adornments that are considered offensive, inconsistent with the dignity of the cemetery or considered hazardous to cemetery personnel. For example, items incorporating beads or wires may become entangled in mowers or other equipment and cause injury.

A floral sweep will be conducted on the third weekend of each month. Any items of value should be removed prior to this date. Please keep in mind that glass containers are not allowed on cemetery grounds.

“ We're here seven days a week. We want to be the place you come to for an omelet and coffee before work, a cocktail and appetizers after, a quick bite for lunch or dinner, or a burger and a beer before or after the movie. We want to be the place for a dressed-up meal when you're trying to impress that special someone. And we want to be the place where you hold your business meetings or celebrate life's milestones – birthdays, graduations, engagements, weddings and more. We want Jack's to be your favorite restaurant, the place where whatever the time or occasion, you know that a great meal, friends and family await. ”
